Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Knowledge, Vol. 33: December, 1910 Sir Henry Roscoe's fame as a teacher of chemistry is world-wide. His tenure of the Professorship of Chemistry at Owens College, Manchester, did more than anything else to elevate that institution. And the University of Manchester by which it was succeeded, to its present position as the foremost School of Chemistry in Great Britain. Sir Henry has always laboured to establish what we may perhaps describe as the official recognition of Chemistry: his benefactions to Chemical Institutions - and not least to the Chemical Society and its Library - have been great and numerous. His work on the relation of Chemistry to Public Health, and his researches on the Atomic weight of Carbon on Vanadium, and in Spectrum analysis have given him a place of the highest rank among chemists. Sir William Crookes O.M., Foreign Secretary of the Royal Society is a chemist whose work has extended from the domains of pure chemistry and industrial chemistry to that of physical chemistry, and has been of the greatest significance to physics and the fundamental physical conceptions of matter. It is sufficient to enumerate some of his investigations to indicate the range of his work. His discovery of Thallium, in 1861, was one of the first-fruits of the then new science, spectrum analysis; his researches in the rare earths and the genesis of the elements have followed in logical sequence. Physics will always commemorate him for the radiant matter, the fourth state of matter, to which he was the first to give these cognomens and his Radiometer and Spintharoscope, toys though they have been said to be, have none the less furnished material illustrations of the...
